Campaigners' mixed reactions to proposed housing targets

by STEPHEN LLOYD steve.lloyd@trinitymirror.com Twitter: @FleetNandM a campaign group claims.

lished a consultation, Planthe Right Places, on its proposals to simplify the calculathe country.

"The good news is that this support. new methodology, if adopted, We Heart Hart. "There are velopments. also reductions for Rushmoor and Surrey Heath."

8,022 to 6,132 new homes.

Rushmoor's target would be cut by 2,982 homes to 6,174, overspill from Surrey Heath," said Mr Turver.

Green, between Hartley ability and location. Wintney and Hook, at Winch-field, and at Rye Common between Crondall and Odiham, would not be needed.

"Overall, we think that if PROPOSED new housing tar- these proposals are adopted, gets are good news for Hart, it is very good news for Hart, Rushmoor and Surrey Heath, Rushmoor and Surrey Heath," said Mr Turver. "The new Hart The government has pub- housing need would be very achievable and would save ning for the Right Homes in many of our precious green fields that are under threat.

"We would urge people to tion of housing need across respond to the government's consultation and give it their

"We also expect the council will result in a significant re- to set to work immediately to duction in Hart housing revise the draft Local Plan to need," said David Turver of take account of these new de-

"This should be easy. They are already planning for far Mr Turver said that if gov- more houses than we need, ernment proposals were so striking out the controveradopted, Hart's overall hous- sial green field developments ing target would drop from should be a relatively simple task."

However, the Campaign to Protect Rural England (CPRE) while Surrey Heath's target Hampshire fears the prowould reduce by 630 to 7,392. posed new housing figures "Taken together, these re- are set to have a significant ductions are very welcome impact on Hampshire and and reduce the risk that Hart could put at risk the vital role will be forced to take any of protecting the countryside.

While the charity believes more homes are urgently He added the new targets needed to meet Hampshire's would mean that proposed housing needs, it says the prinew settlements at Murrell ority focus must be on afford-

David Turver from We Heart Hart and Tristram Carey of Winchfield Action Group with a map of Hart district and the areas under threat of development damaging in others.

"Parts of southern Hamp- 850 houses a year to 974. Edward Dawson, a CPRE shire will be expected to take Hampshire trustee, said: "We higher numbers and this ex- sion of development into senthink the new numbers are tends into east Hampshire. To helpful in some areas of the north, parts of Basing-Hampshire but potentially stoke and Deane will be given an increase from the current lief and it may kill the idea of

"This would mean exten- come."

sitive rural areas and villages.

"Other areas, like Hart and Rushmoor, will see some rea new town there for years to